

Financial Independence at Retirement

How Many People Are Financially Independent During Retirement?

Most people want to be financially independent during their retirement years. Government statistics, however, tell a different story.

According to the Department of Health and Human Services, of people age 65 and older:

Source: Department of Health and Human Services, Administration on Aging, 2021 Profile of Older Americans; released November 2022

Which group will you be in?

The secret to financial independence at retirement is to commit to a plan today, while you're working and earning an income, a portion of which can be saved for your future financial security!